Festival Venue Fort Mason, San Francisco

San Francisco is home to a vibrant community of world-renowned teachers and their students.

This is the home base for Yoga Journal. This clientele is discerning and discriminating, with ages ranging from the late-20's upwards. Over 90% are college graduates; 60% are professional/managerial; 85% are women; and they earn over $85,000 annually. This is of benefit not only to the city's legion of nationally-renowned teachers and studios, but also those providing the ancillary products and services such as books, DVD's, food, jewelry, clothing, cosmetics, yoga props, yoga teacher training programs, nutritional supplements, etc. that they consume.

In recognition of San Francisco's highly influential spiritually-oriented community this Festival will not be sited in a traditional hotel/convention center. The city's unique atmosphere will instead be encapsulated in a beautiful purpose-built tented city-community which will be raised within the beautiful ocean-side Fort Mason complex. It used to guard San Francisco harbor, and is within sight of both the famous Golden Gate Bridge and the nearby Alcatraz Island.

For seven spectacular days, vendors and participants will be at the center of the action, mingling in a specially-designed 'Rajasthani' or 'Kashmiri' bazaar or market atmosphere of lively streets and squares, stunning views, and colorful banners and stalls.

The Sacred Thread of Yoga

Yoga has been handed on from acharya (teacher) to shishya (student) in an unbroken tradition dating back 5,000 years to the time of the Vedas (India's ancient religious texts). This most venerated tradition is called Guru Parampara, or the 'lineage of the Guru Order'. This Guru-Shishya Parampara, or 'lineage of teacher and student', has lasted because one generation has always managed to inspire the next to continue with the learning, discovery and teaching.

"each generation of lineage receivers must be able to engender the same relationship toward their guru, as they would have with their students, in turn. That was the magical occurrence that lay before us... [as]... we were witness to the transmission of the secret teachings through many generations of yogis simultaneously. There was a force of nature being conducted through the ceiling, walls, and floors of the room, through each heart, and into the hands and feet, the nervous system, and the bodies of knowledge and vitality... we are not the source of consciousness, but consciousness itself."

—Sharon Gannon & David Life, "The Secret Teaching", from "Iyengar: The Yoga Master" by Kofi Busia, Shambhala, 2007, used with permission.

Guru-Shishya Parampara is symbolized by the yajnopavita, the "sacred thread" that many gurus wear around their neck. Yoga can only continue if this sacred thread is preserved, i.e. if the guru somehow inspires the student with the vision of the Sacred which is the inspiration of spirit. It traditionally consists of three threads knotted together symbolizing a variety of triads. One is the trimurti of Brahma, Vishnu and Siva, lords of the creation, preservation and destruction of the universe. Another sat, chit and ananda or 'being', 'consciousness' and 'bliss'. Yet another is yoga's famous triple control of mind, speech and body, or thought, word and deed.

The Presenters

Every presenter at this Festival has been touched by the Sacred Thread of Yoga which has woven its way down to them through the generations. All have been inspired by it and gather together to honor it. Come and savor the presence of these presenters, some of the most remarkable people of our own age, and who are foremost amongst those who continue the tradition of handing on this Sacred Thread.
